Veratex Teams with Jennifer Gucci

By Carole Sloan — Home Textiles Today, 2/10/2007

Panorama City, Calif. — Jennifer Gucci, a former member of the Gucci family renowned for their leather goods and accessories, has signed a licensing agreement with Veratex to produce a home furnishings collection.

"I'm basically starting from scratch, and it will be Englishy in feeling," Gucci explained. "I love the '30s with the clean lines; and I adore flowers, so both elements will be involved," she related. Overall, she noted, the collection will lean toward feminine looks, "but I won't discriminate toward men."

Discussing her home fashions favorites, Gucci said, "My favorite colors are yellows. My house in Marbella, Spain is all in yellow — it's so warm and sunny." In contrast she noted, "My ex-husband — the late Paolo Gucci — loved purple." Polka dots are one of her favorites and "I don't like the super chic and modern."

Gucci, who will be at market this week in the Veratex New York showroom, said that she picked the home arena over apparel "because fashion is flooded now." She added, "I want to do something in the middle [of price points] and things that are easy to put together. I'm a great believer in coordination."

Veratex has the master license for home with the complete textiles segment, including bed, bath, rugs, window, and bath accessories — as the first objective. "Soft home is the primary area "to begin with" said Ed Litwak, Gucci's licensing manager. "We will start talking with furniture companies, and Veratex has the option to develop silverware and dinnerware."

Veratex is developing the bedding, window, rugs, towels, and bath accessories, said Avi Cohen, company ceo. "We also are talking with other textiles companies in specialty areas like pillows, comforters, and down."

Distribution, Cohen said, "will be wide — specialty stores, department stores, big boxes — virtually all retail channels."

While the license is global, "We will design everything here for global distribution," Cohen said. The first collection, Litwak added, "will have a classic look — not wild or specifically young or old in feeling — English with an Italian flair. We will bring in a design specialist for the program." And he added, "It will have a Gucci-esque look with some horse themes."

Veratex expects product to be market-ready three months after this week's market, with fall launches at retail. Price points are expected to be $199 to $249 for a queen bed.

Gucci is currently doing the soundtrack for a movie, using her operatic training. There is a TV mini-series in the works on the Gucci empire, Litwak added.

Wednesday, July 4, 2007

Recently for the first time, at annual Licensing International Show (LIS) in New York, Veratex revealed all its Jennifer Gucci home textiles line, in a massive introduction covering more than 500 Stock Keeping Units (SKUs) in bedding, bath, and rugs.

Veratex, famous for integrated anthology of fabric and home textiles, sources its high quality fabrics from within the country and abroad.

Continual evolvement of new designs and fabrications in regular sateen sheets, developed an extensive range of innovative styles comprising chic contemporary patterns, elegant embroidery as well as comfortable casual fashions.

Display of around 15 beds along with synchronized products was one of the most striking affairs at the Veratex showroom.

Addressing people, Veratex President Avi Cohen said that Jennifer Gucci fashion bedding are made up of light fabrics that exude a fresh feel with sparing embellishments of a higher level. Fabrications comprise of sateen, cotton duck, jacquard with silk appliqué and embroidery on cotton, damask, are among the rest.

Louisville Bedding to debut Jennifer Gucci line

By Staff – Home Textiles Today, 7/24/2007 11:44:00 AM

Louisville, Ky. – Louisville Bedding Company (LBC) has entered into an agreement with Jennifer Gucci Home master licensor Veratex to debut a Jennifer Gucci branded line of basic bedding, including bed pillows, utility comforters, mattress pads and pillow protectors.

The complete line will be unveiled in the LBC showroom at 111 West 40th St. during the New York Home Fashions Summer Market to be held August 6-10.

"This is a special, more upscale line for us" said Scott Walters, national merchandise manager, LBC. "We're tailoring this line to the more discriminating consumer that is looking for higher thread counts, premium cottons, natural fill products, and higher end down alternative products."

The collection will comprise 400 thread count sateen, 600 thread count pima cotton sateen stripes, and 800 thread count basketweave jacquard made of Supima cotton. Bed pillows will feature premium down alternative fibers, as well as feather and down options. Coordinating mattress pads, down alternative comforters, and pillow protectors will round out the line.
